Exhausted

Matthew 11:28–30

NAT COOPER
OCT 27, 2026

A man is never himself until he finds his way back to God. Apart from God, he will always be exhausted! He may try man's favorite remedies—alcohol, drugs of all kinds, remedies for worldly depression, accruing wealth, being consumed with similar friends—but, alas, he will have to admit he is expended completely!

Desperate

In Matthew 11:25–27 Jesus was speaking directly to men who were on a quest for God! To satisfy this ill-conceived concept of religion, they were trying to be perfect. What they were after in life was killing them! At times men discover that their resolves send them to their death. Strangely, the ones He was speaking to were the very ones who, due to their intellectualism, claimed rabbinical solutions. Now note, Jesus was NOT condemning intellectual prowess. The target of His condemnation was intellectual pride. "The heart, not the head, is the home of the Gospel" (Alfred Plummer). As an Irish saying exhorts, "When describing men, some start with the feet (how tall he is) or the head (how intellectual he is), but God's measurements always begin with the heart." Begin in the arena of pride, and you discover exhaustion and disillusionment.

Search for Truth

I know men who have been searching for truth. I am 91 now, and they are still searching. They refuse to come to God through His beloved Son! You see, in Jesus we discover what God is truly like (John 5:37; 6:46; 9:37; 14:7).
